THE 1944

Kaleidoscope

PURPOSE

To the students of Hampden-Sydney College, both naval and civilian, the faculty and all our associates, we present the 1944 KALEIDOSCOPE. Because of the accelerated program brought about by the necessities of war, those traditional college activities — fraternities, clubs, societies, and recreational organizations have been suspended "for the duration." However, our religious groups, athletics, Glee Club, and a limited number of school publications remain as a part of the campus life. The central theme carried throughout this book is the part played by the students and alumni of Hampden-Sydney in the wars since 1776 — the year of the founding of both our nation and College. To truly represent Hampden-Sydney during this war, and to revive memories of those college days in the years to come — this is the real purpose of the 1944 KALEIDOSCOPE.

Dedication

To those men who once shared the familiar quiet and beauty of Hampden-Sydney, and who went forth to answer above and beyond the call of duty, this 1944 edition of the KALEIDOSCOPE is reverently dedicated.

THE PRESIDENT

EDGAR GRAHAM GAMMON

IN VIEW of the part played by Hampden-Sydney men in the past wars of the Nation, what they are doing in the present conflict causes no surprise. From the very beginning the call to arms was answered by our faculty, student body, and alumni. Today Hampden-Sydney men in nearly every branch of the service are with the fighting forces all over the world. Some have given their lives; others are wearing decorations for valor. All are doing their best. Each one is held in the high affection and admiration of his Alma Mater.

IN APPRECIATION

Without the aid of our kind and generous friends it would have been impossible to publish THE KALEIDOSCOPE. We take this opportunity to express our sincere appreciation and gratitude to Dr. Eggleston for preparing the theme of this book — Hampden-Sydney during war-time; to Mr. Bittinger for his expert guidance, wise advice, and excellent co-operation; to Lieutenant Fisher for his invaluable information on matters concerning the Navy; to the advertisers, whose financial support make possible publication; and to the students and alumni of the college who have contributed freely of both time and money that the 1944 KALEIDOSCOPE might be a success.

NAVAL HEADQUARTERS

Navy Life

IN THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR

THE exact day when the news of the Declaration of Independence, adopted in Philadelphia on July 4, 1776, reached Prince Edward County, is not known. We do know that before July 25, a student military company was already drilling, with every student in the College and in the academy on the muster roll; and that the students had elected John Blair Smith, a tutor and student, as Captain. Regular musters were held during the session 1776-1777; and when Governor Patrick Henry called for companies from Prince Edward and other counties, to march to Williamsburg (then the Capital) to resist an invasion by the British, the student company, in purple shirts and coonskin caps, was the first in the county to respond. Only those 16 years of age and over were allowed to go.

The company remained at Williamsburg for six weeks; was publicly thanked by the Governor; and the boys then joined the various branches of the Army. The musters continued at the College, and in September, 1778, the student company marched to Petersburg to protect that city. As far as is known, Hampden-Sydney students were the first to organize a military company, and the first to march to war.

THE COMMANDING OFFICER

LIEUTENANT GEORGE F. HOWE

. . . former resident of Marlboro, Massachusetts; A.B. and M.A., Clark University, Worcester, Massachusetts; graduate student New York University; teacher at Wyandotte, Michigan, and Ohio University before accepting the position of Dean and Professor of Geography at Connecticut State Teachers College; received his commission as Lieutenant in the United States Navy, April 5, 1943; after a period in the Officers' Indoctrination School of Columbia University, was ordered to Hampden-Sydney as the Commanding Officer of the newly established Naval V-12 Unit.

With a New Englander's sense of discipline and efficiency, he has set a high standard and is respected, admired, and obeyed.

EXECUTIVE OFFICER

LIEUTENANT RAYBURN J. FISHER

... native of Tennessee; A.B., Howard College; M.A., University of Alabama; Athletic Director and Principal of the Tuscaloosa County High School; Superintendent of the Tuscaloosa County Schools; received his commission, Lieut. (jg) on April 17, 1943 after an indoctrination course at Columbia University, and was ordered to report as Executive Officer to the Hampden-Sydney Naval V-12 Unit; was promoted to the rank of full Lieutenant August 1, 1944.

Quiet devotion to duty, combined with a sense of unimpeachable fairness, marks his course.

MEDICAL OFFICER

LIEUTENANT JOHN BASCOM ANDERSON

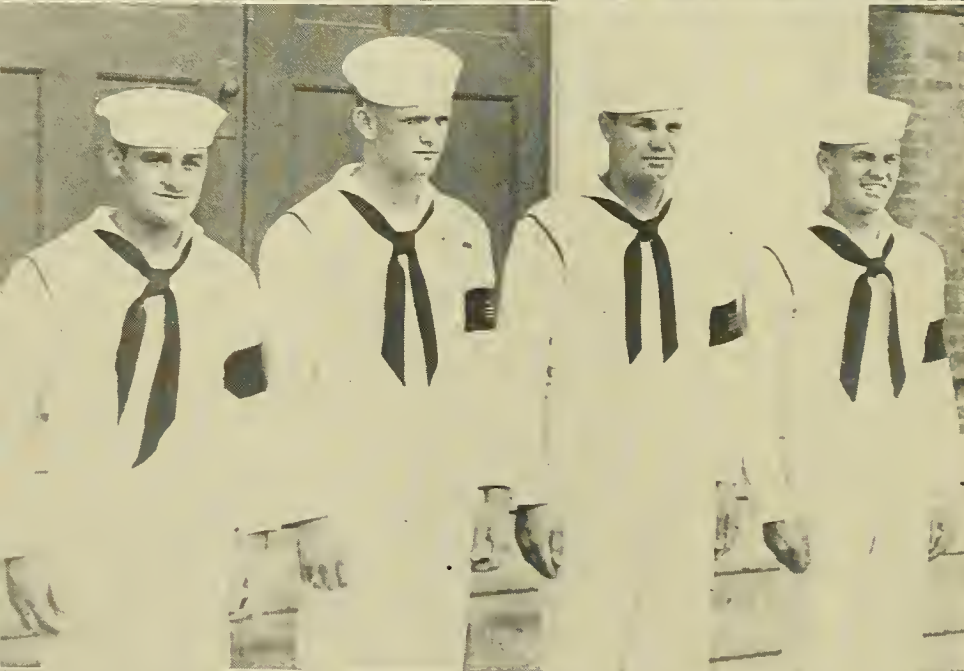

... Asheville, North Carolina; B.A., Duke University; B.S., in Medicine, Wake Forest College; M.D., University of Maryland; interned and became resident surgeon at Memorial Hospital, Winston-Salem, N. C.; commissioned as Lt. (jg) in 1939, he saw duty with the Fleet and Marine Forces in the Southwest Pacific Area; in June, 1942, elevated to the rank of full Lieutenant; reported from the Charleston, South Carolina, Naval Hospital in July, 1943, to assume his duties as Medical Officer to the Naval V-12 Unit.

Skilled physician and surgeon, with a gift for making friends, he has entered quickly and fully into the community life of Hampden-Sydney.

THE ROAD

Civilian Life

IN THE WARS OF 1812-1848

According to Dr. J. H. C. Bagby, in his GENERAL CATALOGUE OF ALUMNI, John Kirkpatrick, who graduated in 1812, "was commander of the Hampden-Sydney students in the War of 1812-14; and was a member of General Porter's staff." Unfortunately we have no data to tell how many students and how many alumni were in that war.

It is known that in the War of 1848 against Mexico, some of our alumni took part. The names of the students who took part, we do not know. Some of those in the war of 1848 became soldiers and officers in the war of 1861-65.

THE LOUNGE

Activities and

IN THE WAR BETWEEN THE STATES

It seems hardly possible that any educational institution, North or South, furnished, in proportion to its enrollment, more of its alumni and students to the armies, than did Hampden-Sydney. Dr. H. Tucker Graham, when President of our College, said, "The number of Hampden-Sydney men who went into the Confederate States Army exceeded the total number of her matriculates for the fourteen years preceding the outbreak of the war. Two-fifths of these were commissioned officers." From about 1830 to 1864, the GENERAL CATALOGUE reads like a muster roll of the Confederate States Army. When, under President Atkinson as Captain, the student military company marched to Richmond in June, 1861, it was ordered to disband because it contained a number of boys under 18. The boys protested vigorously, Governor Letcher yielded to their protest, and they entered the war.

The fraternity has enjoyed a successful year in spite of the adverse conditions brought about by the war. A large group of science majors, both Navy and civilian, was initiated in February, and during the last term an educational movie and a dance were sponsored. Taking the excellent advice of their frater in facultate, Dr. Frierson, three members attended the annual meeting of the Virginia Academy of Arts and Sciences in Richmond on May 10.

MONOGRAM CLUB

We heartily salute the men who won the H monogram this year. They well deserve congratulations, not so much on their excellence of play as on the continuous fighting spirit prevalent at all times, and the hard work put forth. Although neither the basketball nor baseball teams enjoyed successful seasons, they gave their opponents plenty of stiff opposition — the H.-S. spirit still prevails.

GLEE CLUB

Under the able direction of Professor Raimonde Aubrey, the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club has held two very successful concerts during the past term, one in College Church and the other in Rivermont Church of Lynchburg. On account of the great interest shown, plans are being made for a full schedule, if possible, in the July-November term.

After losing all but one of its members in March, the fraternity came to life toward the end of the year by initiating five students, mainly through the efforts of Dr. Thompson. The survival of Eta Sigma Phi on the campus clearly shows that the flame of classical learning and interest, though dimmed, has not been snuffed out by the present war's great emphasis on scientific specialization.

BAND

The music for six successful Navy-Civilian dances held at Hampden-Sydney was furnished by a small but effective band. The men through hard work overcame the difficulties of practice periods and changing personnel and played for not only the local dances but for several outside dances.

FORE 'N AFT STAFF

This weekly mimeograph sheet is published by the students of the College as a war-time substitute for the pre-V-12 publication, "THE TIGER." The paper originates in Naval Headquarters, and contains items concerning the various activities of both civilians and the members of the Unit.

Upon enrollment at Hampden-Sydney every student automatically becomes an associate member of the S. C. A. The Association seeks to offer them an opportunity for spiritual growth and an enriched life by designing all of its activities to meet their needs. Its motto is found in Colossians, chapter three, verse fifteen.

Since July, 1943, Dr. Williams has generously offered his home for the use of the students as a form of U. S. O. Many a telephone call has originated there and many hours of relaxation enjoyed. We want to express to him our gratitude for his great interest and friendliness.

IN MODERN WARS

The number of Hampden-Sydney men who participated in the Spanish-American War is not known. In World War I Hampden-Sydney men enlisted in great numbers. The Memorial Gate bears the names of fourteen Alumni who made the supreme sacrifice. Under Federal Officers the S. A. T. C. was promptly organized at the College, and Army regulations prevailed as they do at present in World War II.

According to an incomplete study made of Hampden-Sydney Alumni in World War II the most accurate estimate seems to indicate that thirty-three percent are now engaged in the several branches of the service. With deepest regret and sorrow the College has received the news of the death of eighteen of these valiant sons. Since its inauguration July 1, 1943, the Naval V-12 Program has given partial training to five hundred and fifteen enlisted men. Of these, eighty-two have gone on to Midshipman Schools; twenty-five to Medical Schools; forty-one to other V-12 Units; sixty to various Units connected with the fleet; and two to Annapolis. At present the Naval Roster shows two hundred and forty-five aboard. Hampden-Sydney and all of her sons rightly share in the phrase, "well done."

Athletics

COACH FRANK L. SUMMERS

During the past year-and-a-half, Coach Summers has had an unenviable and difficult job. The fall of '42 saw his last assistant called into the service, and since then he has been the sole athletic director of the college. Of course, the Navy noncoms who came in last July have been of great help, but Coach has shouldered the main burden. Too much credit can not be given him for the extremely successful way in which he has met this situation.

BASKETBALL

While the basketball team had an unsuccessful season in winning only four games out of seventeen, it can be said to their credit that they played the hardest schedule ever undertaken by a Tiger five. The outstanding teams played were the Naval Training Stations of Norfolk and Bainbridge, the Naval Air Station, Duke University, and the Naval Academy at Annapolis. Close games were lost to Virginia, Richmond, Woodrow Wilson Hospital, and the Quantico

CAPTAIN BILL CANTWELL

Marines. The highlights of the season were victories over the University of Maryland and the College of William and Mary.

Prospects before the season opened were exceptionally bright, but for various reasons four out of the first five men were lost. Bill Cantwell, the team Captain, and former George Washington University freshman star, was outstanding and climaxed the season by being picked as the best all-around player on the All-State team. Cantwell also ranked second in the high scoring players of the state. Six men alternated in the starting five. They were Cantwell, Bob Bookman, Joe Voight, Joe Walters, Tex Gaster, and Harry Bond. In addition to the above, letters were awarded to Bob Burke, Clarence Rader, and Bruce LeGrande. The position of Manager was held down by Jelly Neilson, ably assisted by Barry Cook, both of whom won monograms.

BASEBALL

The regular spring baseball season ended with a very poor record of fourteen losses against one victory. This one win was a 5 to 2 game with V. P. I. at Blacksburg that cost them the state championship and gave it to the University of Richmond. The varsity team was composed of one civilian, "Stein" Greenwood, and eight Navy men. Captain Nubby Gouldin was the only player on the squad who had ever won a letter before. Nubby, along with Jimmy Tarry, centerfielder and former Tiger in civilian days, were the most dependable hitters. The letter winners in addition to the above three were Clarence Rader at first, Harry Bond at second, and Pal Palazollo playing the hot corner. In the outfield were John Morgan, Grover Small, and Red Staples. The mound duties were taken care of by Frank Ellis and Flatbush Nelson, both of whom had never pitched before this season.

While their victories amounted to only one during the season, there were several close contests, and in addition, the team, because of its inexperience was inclined to have one or two bad innings per game which proved very costly. The most commendable feature of the team was the fact that they never quit and always felt that they would win the next game. The players tried hard but made glaring mistakes due to lack of experience rather than to mechanical fallibility. It was just a question of their best not being good enough. At least five baseball games will be played during the summer semester and a much better team is expected. Ken Curles, a fine pitching prospect, will be eligible along with outfielder Tom Gorman and infielders Bob Manupelli and Ed Herring. These men will add a much needed hitting strength to the team.

FOOTBALL

For the first time in a number of years the College was not represented on the gridiron. The decision not to have a team was withheld as long as possible so that an opportunity might be had to look over the Navy V-12 boys. Unfortunately most of the Navy boys were ineligible due to rules requiring them to be here one semester before competing. No lettermen returned in the civilian group and the material was very limited.

Last winter the Athletic Council decided to renew football with a five-game schedule beginning early in September and ending just before exams in October. Games have already been arranged with Virginia, Richmond, Maryland, and William and Mary.

During the month of March spring practice was conducted by Coach Frank Summers with about forty candidates out. Although handicapped by rain several scrimmages were held and enough ability was seen in the new men to indicate to the coaches that a representative Tiger eleven could be put on the field next fall. This practice was of great benefit to the coaches as it gave them an opportunity to look over a group of players, none of whom they had ever seen in a uniform before. Men were shifted to different positions and by the end of practice two fairly smooth teams were functioning. Formal practice will begin again about the middle of August when a much larger turnout is expected. A number of the new men who arrived the first of March had been out of school for two years or more and were advised to devote their spare time to studies. This group will furnish several good men in addition to those viewed by the coaches in spring practice.

Coach Summers will be assisted by one of his former star players and Co-Captain of the 1942 eleven, Chief Petty Officer Walter Sprye, who will handle the backs.

INTRAMURALS

A greater stress than ever before has been placed on intramural athletics throughout the past twelve months. With only two major sports, basketball and baseball, the interest in intramurals was intense, and a large percentage of the student body participated. Softball held the spotlight last summer, during which a full schedule was played by both Navy and civilian teams. The civilians proved themselves to be tops in the school when they defeated the Navy championship team, and also the faculty ten. Although the college did not put a football team on the field last fall, Death Valley was the scene of many a hard fought "touch" tussle. The presence of many former collegiate stars added much attraction to these games. Eleven teams, nine Navy and two civilian, took part in a full season of basketball, and following this the Navy showed much interest in volley-ball, but the civilians failed to put a team on the court. The year ended with a softball tournament.

Much credit must be given Wallace Nunley for handling the job of intramural manager so well in spite of the ever-present difficulty in arranging a schedule suitable to both Navy and civilians.

THE LIBRARY

Here we find the library taking its place as the heart of the school by serving everyone with reading of all types. It provides informational service and a variety of books and magazines supplemental to the regular curriculum as well as those that are inspirational and recreational.

Last July we had visions that the year ahead of us would be one of "all work and no play." The summer proved dull enough, but with the opening of S. T. C. things really began popping. A greater percentage of civilians than ever before became charter members of the Everyday Club, and the Navy didn't do too bad on the weekends. Last fall and winter the Navy gave two dances that were very successful even though they didn't have Tommy Dorsey. Since March, however, the civilians have really proved themselves to be the B. T. O.'s on the campus. They have put on three hops at "The Green Mill," a picnic at Bear Creek Lake, and have taken over three S. T. C. dances, especially finals. Also, we'll have to mention the invasion of Ashland with its wide variety of effects. Toward the end of the last term, the Faculty entertained the Navy men who were leaving with a reception, and the Seniors with their annual picnic. All in all, it has been a very successful year socially, and our finals which are now being planned should provide a fitting finale.
